Work of the Associated Press.

How Gladstone's Speech Was Handled for the American Newspapers Yesterday.

The Railroad Arbitration Bill Introduced in the Senate this Afternoon.

GREAT WORK.

Beauties of the Associated Press.

By Telegram to THE SENTINEL.

New York, April 9.—The superior cable service of the Associated Press yesterday deserves special mention. It was the most rapid and thorough work ever done for the American newspapers. For the first time two distinct reports were made. One for the afternoon papers and another containing almost a verbatim report of Gladstone's great speech, an abstract of Parnell's, with the comments of London papers on measure proposed.

[The afternoon report was printed in full in THE SENTINEL, the only afternoon paper in Fort Wayne that takes the Associated Press dispatches.]

The liberal papers, the Aberdeen Free Press, the Glasgow Herald, the Belfast Whig, the Londonderry Standard, all oppose the bill. The Dublin Freeman and Journal approve the scheme. The Dublin Irish Times and Dublin Express both disapprove it.

In Cork there is much excitement over Gladstone's proposals, but the general opinion of the people is favorable. The Fall Mall Gazette repudiates the scheme.

WASHINGTON

News From the Senate To-day.

By Telegram to THE SENTINEL.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—Senator Geo. Hearst, of California, was sworn in. The bill to appoint a board of arbitration to settle differences between railroad companies and employees was introduced in the senate.

NOTES.

After a week's debate on Mr. Logan's bill to increase the army strength to 30,000 men, the senate rejected it 19 to 31. Mr. Payne was the only democrat who voted aye, while Messrs. Bowen, Glacie, Conger, Hale, Ingalls, Jones of Nevada, Plumb, Sherman, Teller, Van Wyck and Wilson of Iowa, republicans, voted nay.

Gladstone's Bill.

By Cable to THE SENTINEL.

LONDON, April 9.—The newspapers throughout Great Britain and Ireland comment at great length on Gladstone's scheme for Ireland's government. The Liverpool Post says, that whether Gladstone is successful or not, in carrying his bill through parliament, he has forever killed oppression and coercion in Ireland. The Scottish papers condemn the bill, say it will not pass and close by asking home rule for Scotland.

The Killed and Wounded.

By Telegram to THE SENTINEL.

CHICAGO, April 9.—A special from Laredo, Texas, says that two of the men wounded in yesterday's conflict died today. Returns now show that five partisans were killed and ten wounded. There were five funerals to-day and business was practically suspended. The Belknap rifles, state troops, are expected to arrive by special train to-night.

The Ohio To-day.

By Telegram to THE SENTINEL.

CINCINNATI, April 9.—During the eight hours ending at 10 o'clock this morning, the river has risen only two inches. There is every reason to hope it will begin to recede in a few hours and that it will not reach fifty-six feet. It was fifty-five feet, nine inches at 10 a. m. The weather is fair and mild.

Arrested—Comment on Gladstone

By Telegram to THE SENTINEL.

New York, April 9.—William H. Miller, member of the board of aldermen for 1884, was arrested in Florida yesterday for Broadway bribery. Gladstone's home rule scheme is favorably commented on by all the papers in this city this morning.

A NEW WHITE HOUSE.

A Private Residence to be Built for the President.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—Senator Morrill's bill, which has been reported favorably by the senate, and is likely to pass both houses, is designed to furnish the president an appropriate dwelling place. The present White House has long since been inadequate to the demands of a president's residence. Out of the thirty-one rooms in the building, there is but one room on the first floor, the family dining room, and six chambers on the second floor are all that is left for the use of the president's family. The rest are devoted to the requirements of official receptions, and to the executive offices.

This is a very different state of affairs to the days of that good housewife, Mrs. John Adams, who used to have lines swinging from one pile of lumber to another in the East room, and hang the clothes there to dry on wash days.

THE WHITE HOUSE IN 1800.

The president's house has been the scene of more changes, and business of importance to the welfare of a greater number of people has been transacted within its walls during the past eighty-six years of its existence than in any building in the world. It was the first public building erected in Washington. In March, 1800, the commissioners having charge of the new capital city advertised in the New York and Philadelphia papers "for a plan for a president's house to be erected in the city of Washington," offering as a prize for the competition the liberal sum of $500 for the accepted design. The successful one among the fifteen applicants was James Hoban, a young Irishman. He pleased the commissioners so well by his talent that they gave him a large salary to superintend the construction of the house. Hoban's plan, it was afterwards found, was not such an original conception as they at first supposed, for he closely copied the plan of Duke of Leinster's palace at Dublin, so that the present White House is almost a duplicate of that palace.

The above sketch of the "President's palace," as it was then called, has been handed down to us from those days. A fitting accompaniment to it would be this extract from a description of the city by John Cotton Smith, at that time member of congress from Connecticut. He wrote: "One wing of the Capitol only had been erected, which, the president's house, a mile distant from it, with constructed with white sandstone, were shining objects in distant contrast with the scene around them. Instead of recognizing the avenues and streets portrayed on the plan of the city not one was visible. The Pennsylvania avenue, leading, as laid down on paper, from the Capitol to the presidential mansion, was nearly the whole distance a deep morass covered with elder bushes, which were cut through to the president's house." Here is a contrast with the Pennsylvania avenue of to-day.

THE PRESENT WHITE HOUSE.

In 1792 the corner stone of the White House was laid, and though the neighboring hills of Maryland and Virginia were full of excited people, they were unaware of it, and no soldiers from a Virginia quarry was used in the walls of the building. This sandstone was afterwards found to be such a poor building material that it became necessary to give it each year a coat of thick white paint to keep it from crumbling away. The house is 132x86 feet in dimensions. The original White House cost about $250,000, and when John Adams and his family first occupied it, but six of its rooms were furnished. In 1817, on the invasion of the city by the British troops, President Madison fled from the city to a place of safety in Maryland, but his wife, Dolly Paine Madison, remained to fulfill an engagement for a dinner party which she had made, not believing that the British would reach the city before the next day. While the guests were assembled at the banquet a servant rushed in with the startling intelligence that the enemy was on Capitol hill. Then there was a stampede. The guests fled in all directions and half an hour later the British soldiers were in the house. Finding a glorious dinner spread in the east room they regarded themselves first, then pillaged the house and set fire to it. The wines which the soldiers found in abundance at the deserted feast so fired their brains that they made a bungling job of the incendiary portion of their raid and but little damage was done to the building. It was not until 1817 that the house was restored.

When General Jackson was president in 1829 the grand portico was added, with its Ionic columns, which add such a grandeur to the building. Since "Old Hickory's" time no other important change has been made in the building, except refurbishing and its annual coat of paint. These expenses, together with the original cost of the building, foot up to nearly $500,000.

THE SITE FOR THE NEW PRESIDENT'S HOUSE.

The site for the new building proposed by Mr. Morrill's bill is located directly south of the present White House. An appropriation of $300,000 is asked to begin the erection of a building precisely similar to the present one and to be connected with it by a broad corridor, the new building to be used as the president's private residence and the old one for the executive offices.

While the bill is before congress there will be considerable chafing of the members advocating it, on the ground that they are only the ones who possess the "presidential bee" and are voting to feather their future nest.

PERSONAL CHAT

About Men and Events of Interest in Fort Wayne.

Rev. William M. French died suddenly at his residence in Indianapolis, about half past 7 o'clock last night.

Morris McDonald has organized a telephone company at New Albany, and petitioned the council for right of way.

The people of Bronson, Michigan, have practically passed a prohibitory law by fixing the license to sell intoxicating liquors at $6,000.

Samuel W. Austin, an old citizen of Crawfordsville, and cashier of the First National bank, was stricken with paralysis Tuesday evening.

J. F. Snyder, the new postmaster, has taken possession of the LaGrange post-office, and Mrs. E. M. Speed retires after holding the office for a period of seventeen years.

A woman in Butler, this state, washed all winter to pay for a divorce, and just finished paying for it, when she turned around and married the man from whom she was divorced.

The Indianapolis common council has revoked the franchise of the Central Union Telephone company, and the plant and instruments are being removed. New telephone instruments will be exhibited there to-morrow.

The Indiana Farmer will publish the following summary of crop reports for Indiana, this week: Of wheat, 1 per cent. of average in area, 91, condition 91. Last year same date, are 83, and 68. Of clover, 85, timothy, meadow, 93. Last year same; clover, 78 and timothy, 91.

James Aldrich, the would-be murderer of Jerome Snyder, of Xenia, who was released on a bond of $1,000 last week, disappeared and forfeited his bail. This was discovered, when an attempt was made to re-arrest him for the purpose of increasing his bond. Snyder is yet alive, but in a critical condition. A large reward is offered for Aldrich's apprehension.

The town council of Rockville has granted permission to John J. Safely and his associates under the name of the Rockville Telephone company, to erect and maintain telegraph and telephone poles and wires in the streets and alleys of Rockville. The company will connect all out towns in the county with Rockville and give the citizens a direct wire to Indianapolis.

John C. Dickson, of Indianapolis, has entered suit in the superior court of Evansville, against James W. Morris, manager of the Mlle. Rhea company, for $3,000 alleged to have been advanced to the Romany Rye company, they being partners owning a half interest in the right to play that drama, the other half having been owned by the late theatrical firm of Brooks & Dickson.

Mr. John Londergin and his wife started from South Bend to emigrate to Denver. In Chicago the wife desired to visit her father, Patrick Reilly, on the west side, and left her husband on the street for that purpose, since which time she has not been seen. When she left him she had in her possession $80 and several jewelry ornaments, consisting of a gold watch and neck chain, ear rings and several finger rings.

Mr. I. B. Gwin, a democrat, entered upon his duties as superintendent fifth division railway mail service on the 1st day of April, vice Superintendent Burt, removed. Gwin's first official act was the issuing of an address to the railway postal clerks under him, in which he says: "It will be the desire of this office to have the confidence and hearty cooperation of every employee, to the end that the efficiency and high standard of perfection attained in this service under the splendid management of my able predecessors shall in no way deteriorate."

THE TELEPHONE.

The Central Union Company to Certainly Withdraw From Fort Wayne.

Mr. R. B. Hoover, local manager of the telephone company, was in his office this morning when THE SENTINEL man called. "I am only here temporarily," said Mr. Hoover, "and I can only say that the order of the Central Union company will be followed, and all telephone instruments removed as soon as their contract expires. Six instruments were removed March 1, and 150 or so will be taken out June 1."

This will leave Fort Wayne without telephone service unless a new company comes in, and already Mr. S. C. Lumbard is figuring on organizing a local company to start and maintain a telephone exchange in Fort Wayne on a scale as extensive as the present service.

Matilda Ray has applied for a divorce from John Ray.

DEATH!

Dealt to Four Strikers at East St. Louis.

The Crowd Attempt to Rush on the Railroad Yards and are Shot Down.

Shots Exchanged at Argenta—An Attempt to Shut Off the Coal Supply.

A NEW DEAL.

An Effort to be Made to Shut off the Supply of Coal.

By Telegram to THE SENTINEL.

St. Louis, April 9.—The executive committee of the Knights of Labor have sent word to the assembly in which belong the miners at Mount Olive, Staunton and Warden, to make, upon notification, a demand upon the company, to cease to load coal for the Missouri Pacific or any of its branches. Should this demand not be conceded with, cessation of work will be next on the program. The purpose is to shut off the supply of coal from the Missouri Pacific.

Master Mechanic Bartlett, yesterday, sent to twenty-three firemen who left engines during the first part of the strike and been out ever since, notice of discharge. The firemen in this strike have persistently claimed they were not on a strike, but left the engines because they thought it safer to do so than to stay on them.

SHOOTING AT ARGENTA.

LITTLE ROCK, April 9.—Between midnight and 1 o'clock this morning Deputy Sheriff Williams, who has had charge of the force of deputies guarding the St. Louis and Iron Mountain round house and machine shops at Argenta, opposite this city, was approached by F. H. Darby, a leading member of the Knights of Labor, and notified him to take his force away or they would be put out. Williams seized Darby and locked him up in one of the rooms. Just then the outline twenty or thirty men were seen a short distance away, and Williams ordered them out. Irregular shooting then began. The deputies and assailants then began. Probably a hundred shots were fired, and Williams was dangerously wounded. The mob soon after fled. Sheriff Warthen afterward arrested four men. Everything is quiet this morning.

SIX STRIKERS SHOT DEAD.

St. Louis, April 9.—A crowd of strikers formed at the relay depot in East St. Louis at 1:45 o'clock, and advanced in the direction of the railroad yards to stop work. They were met by a guard of deputies, who ordered them to disperse. The mob refused and made a rush for the yards, when the deputies leveled their Winchester and fired, killing six strikers.

LATER.

St. Louis, Mo., April 9.—The four deputy marshals stationed in the Louisville and Nashville yards fired into the crowd of 300 strikers. Five men and one woman were shot. The woman is supposed to be mortally wounded. The killed are: T. E. Phompton, Pat Bristol, employee of the water works, not a striker; Oscar Washington, painter; John Bohman, water works laborer, not a striker; Major Richman, shot in the head and shoulder and probably will die; Mrs. John Pfeiffer, shot in the back, probably mortally, and an unknown man shot at the bridge approach. The crowd made no attack upon the yards, as first reported, but were standing on Cahokia bridge, near the Louisville and Nashville yards, jeering at the guards, when, without the slightest apparent provocation, the deputies leveled their rifles and fired two volleys. The crowd immediately separated, running in all directions, and the deputies ran over the Cahokia bridge toward the Missouri river bridge, still holding their rifles and firing to cover their retreat.

The strikers then returned to recover their dead. After the crowd returned to the scene and the excitement had abated, several leading strikers drew revolvers and swore they would drive all the deputies out of the city, even at a loss of their own lives.

A STRIKE OVER.

PITTSBURGH, April 9.—The strike at McClure's coal works, at Everson, Pa., has ended satisfactorily to the miners. The firm granted all demands and work was resumed to-day. About 1,000 men were affected.

STRIKE AT THE BRUNSWICK WORKS.

CHICAGO, April 9.—The employees of the Brunswick, Balke & Collender billiard company, between 400 and 450 men, struck this morning for an increase of wages, changing from piece work to day work and the discharge of all non-union men.

FAST TRAINS

To Be a Feature of the Nickel Plate Railroad.

The Nickel Plate railroad company is grading its track and making all preparations to put on a line of fast passenger trains. The Nickel Plate is going into the Central Traffic association and this extract explains its importance:

The Cleveland Leader is much disturbed lest the Nickel Plate will become a member of the Central Traffic association and asks judicial interference. The Leader says: "There is reason for believing that the Erie company will succeed in badgering the Vanderbilts and making the Nickel Plate a member of the Central Traffic association. The Nickel Plate, with its single accommodation train daily, is a very harmless competitor for New York business against three fully equipped roads. If it does succeed, by industrious efforts, in picking up some business, but if fettered by the high rates which the Central Traffic association is seeking to impose upon Cleveland, it would undoubtedly lose even this little through business, because the road is not allowed to make close connections at Buffalo with any trunk line. The assertion has often been made that the Nickel Plate cannot be made a member of an association like the Central Passenger committee or the Traffic association, because it is in the hands of a receiver. It is noticeable, however, that other roads, controlled by receivers, are enrolled as members of these bodies, either by the blindness of the courts to the fact, or by their express or implied permission."

Death of E. E. Shirk, the Wealthy Fern Merchant and Banker, at His Home.

THE M. E. CONFERENCE.

Second Day of the North Indiana Conclave.

By Telegram to THE SENTINEL.

WARSAW, April 9.—The large auditorium of the M. E. church was not sufficient to hold the throngs who desired to attend the missionary anniversary last evening. In the absence of C. C. McCabe, D. D., on account of illness, the meeting was addressed by Rev. F. A. Hadden, of the Rock River conference, and Dr. R. M. Barnes, of Richmond. The addresses were fine and the meeting enthusiastic.

The conference convened this morning at 8:30. Rev. T. Stabler conducted the devotional exercises. After the reading of the minutes, the presiding elders made reports of their districts.

R. D. Robinson reported a flourishing year in the Muncie district. The bishop, on behalf of the preachers of his district, presented their retiring presiding elder with a very handsome upholstered chair and a quilt from the ladies of Montpelier.

W. J. Vignus was next called, and reported the Warsaw district as having had a most successful year. As Brother Vignus retires from the presiding eldership this year, the preachers of his district, through the bishop, presented him with an elegant gold watch.

C. W. Lynch reported the Fort Wayne district, F. T. Simpson the Goshen, and J. E. Ervin the Kokomo district.

All these reports showed a good and successful year's work.

The conference business is proceeding rapidly. Most of the effective elders have been called, and reported their collections and their characters were passed.

Evidence of Prosperity.

Several very important changes have recently been made in the leading clothing establishment of our city. First, the Calhoun street building has been beautifully decorated and refurbished, and will henceforth be devoted entirely to Men's and Boys' Furnishing Goods, Hats and Caps, and we are sure in stating that in this building will be found the largest and most complete stock in northern Indiana. The first floor on Main street will be used exclusively for Men's and Youths' Clothing, all made especially for Messrs. Sam, Pete & Max. The second floor on Main street has been tastefully fitted up for Boys' and Children's Clothing, making a cosy and pleasant place for ladies, where they can leisurely sit out their children, avoiding the many annoyances usually encountered. This department is worthy of an early inspection. The third floor on Main street is filled with duplicates for each department named.

The entire establishment has been refitted and decorated, and makes an appearance creditable to its liberal management, in their determination, that Star Clothing House shall keep pace with the metropolitan growth of our city. Messrs. Sam, Pete and Max cordially invite the public to inspect the largest, best made and most reasonably priced stock of clothing, furnishing goods, hats, &c., in the city. 8dwt

STRONG STATEMENTS.

Rev. S. H. Troyer, of New Albany, Ind., states as follows how he saved himself from an attack which threatened serious results:

"On the 7th of June, 1884, I was taken with rheumatic fever, and for five weeks was not free from it. It then settled in my left foot, where it remained for about four weeks. Then it moved to my hips, shoulders, neck and collar bone, where it stayed until driven out by Athlophoros. Previous to the remedy I had tried the skill of five physicians, from whom I obtained no relief. Then I resorted to the use of different remedies external and internal, but I continued to grow worse all the time until the 1st of October, when my druggist recommended Athlophoros. I had but little faith when I took the first bottle. At this time I was so helpless that my wife had to dress me, wash my face and assist me out of bed. I could not sleep more than from thirty to forty-five minutes at a time, so intense was my pain.

"My first dose of Athlophoros was taken at two o'clock in the afternoon, and I took two more soon after. The first dose gave me much relief, and the second eased me so greatly that I was enabled to talk freely and with comfort to my family and friends. The third dose enabled me to sleep four and a half hours without waking. I continued the use of Athlophoros until fourteen bottles had been taken. By this time my health was so much improved that I left off the medicine. That was in December, 1884, and I am now quite well."

Rev. Wm. Cool, of Denver, Ind., says: "I used only one bottle of Athlophoros, and I think it a good medicine. I consider that I derived much benefit from it."

"Athlophoros," says Mr. D. P. Sheets, of Mooresville, Ind., "gave me great satisfaction in a case of neuralgia, and I can heartily recommend it to others as doing all that is claimed for it."

Mr. J. A. Wilson, the photographer of New Albany, Ind., whose offices are at Nos. 6 and 8 Main street, tells of one of these cases. His story follows:

"I had rheumatism but it disappeared after using one bottle of Athlophoros. I was in my arms and I had sharp, shooting pains. I was suffering and complaining a good deal when a friend, coming into my gallery one morning, asked me what the trouble was. I said it was rheumatism. He told me of Athlophoros as a cure for neuralgia and rheumatism, and it struck me very forcibly, as it did not, claim to cure every complaint that flesh is heir to. I bought a bottle on the strength of what he said. That was all I needed. I used the one bottle over six months ago, and have not had one ache or pain from rheumatism since."

Mr. Hiram F. Sides, of Fort Branch, Ind., says of his wife's cure:

"Her suffering from neuralgia was intense, and we concluded to try Athlophoros. Almost from the first dose I could tell that she was improving, and two bottles effected a permanent cure, so that she feels no effects of her once dreaded disease. I tried it for rheumatism and soon found relief, one bottle curing me. I shall take great pleasure in recommending Athlophoros to my neighbors."

If you cannot get Athlophoros of your druggist, we will send it express paid, on receipt of regular price—one dollar per bottle. We prefer that you buy it from your druggist, but if he has it, do not be persuaded to try something else, but order our true one, as directed, Athlophoros Co., 112 Wall Street, New York.

SENATOR FAIR is now in correspondence with his former wife, from whom he was recently divorced, and the reunion of this separated family is thought to be only a question of time.

The time required for the development of small-pox after exposure to it is very difficult to determine, but is usually supposed to be from twelve to fourteen days. Prof. H. Eichorst, of Zurich, has however, at length succeeded in recording three cases in which the incubation period is clearly known, and finds it to be a few hours more than nine days in each case.

The usual story of remarkable travels of a pin is at hand. This time the scene is laid in Newton, Iowa, where thirteen years ago Mrs. Cyrus George dropped a pin in her ear. The pin in due course of time dropped into her throat and was swallowed. The other day a doctor took it out of her left leg near the ankle.

Mrs. BREWSTER, the late wife of ex-Archbishop General Brewster, was a most beautiful woman, retaining in middle age almost the beauty of youth, and, with her gray hair, the soft black eyes and their long, curving lashes, and her fine, smooth skin, without a line or wrinkle, showed to double advantage; she not only had a youthful face, but a youthful heart and spirit, and all her troubles and sad experience had never altered her happy voice and laugh.

ONE of the troubles about corporations has been said to be that they have no souls to be damned or bodies to be kicked. It seems that besides these manifest disadvantages to a person who has a complaint against them they have also nothing particular to levy on. James H. Goodsell, formerly of the Graphic, got a judgment against the Western Union Telegraph Company for $23,000. There was extreme difficulty in finding anything to levy on. Mortgages rendered the building exempt, every tenant seemed to own the furniture personally, the instruments were owned by a title that defied the Sheriff, and the only thing that could be taken were the partitions of the building.

The extensive scale on which the Western cattle companies conduct business is illustrated by a project of the Standard Cattle Company, at Ames, Nebraska. About 5,000 acres of land, including thirteen improved farms, has been purchased, on which the company will erect feeding barns, elevator crills, meal-house, offices, etc. The main building, or feeding barn, will be 682x204 feet and will contain 3,000 stalls, where each steer will stand alone and untied. The elevator will be of 40,000 bushels capacity, with crills attached to hold 30,000 bushels of corn in the ear. The works will be run by a sixty-horse power engine. The establishment will turn out 8,000 to 10,000 hives per annum.

An ornithologist who recently rode in a Madison avenue car, New York City, tells Science that "The car contained thirteen women, of whom eleven were birds, as follows: (1) heads and wings of three European starlings; (2) an entire bird (species unknown) of foreign origin; (3) seven warblers, representing four species; (4) a large tern; (5) the heads and wings of three shore-larks; (6) the wings of seven shore-larks and grass-finches; (7) one-half of a gallinule; (8) a small tern; (9) a turtle-dove; (10) a vireo and a yellow-breasted chat; (11) ostrich plumes." In a short time there will not be a plume bird left alive in North America, or perhaps Europe; and their extermination must be charged to woman's wicked vanity.

SUNSET Cox has sent all the way from Constantinople for a lot of terrapin, canvas-back ducks and oysters, and proposes to give his celestial upness, the sultan, a square meal on the American plan.

Why is a newspaper like a pretty woman? To be perfect it must be the embodiment of many types. Its form is made up. It is always chased, though inclined to be giddy. It enjoys a good press; the faster the better. It has a weakness for gossip. Talks a good deal. Can stand some praise, and it's awful proud of a new dress.

METEOROLOGISTS have found that there can be no thunder and lightning without rain. When thunder is heard beneath a clear sky, the reports must either come from distant clouds or be the result of some other cause than the discharge of electricity. Harvest or heat lightning is produced by a distant storm. Thunder seldom accompanies heat lightning, the sound reaching only about twelve miles, while lightning is often seen, by reflection upon nearer clouds, at a much greater distance.

Mary Anderson is computed to be worth $500,000, which is said to be safely invested in real estate, gas stocks and railway shares, both in England and America. A small portion of it is in American bonds. She expects to clear this year $150,000. But our Mary is not so rich as her sister professional, Lotta, who, as a rule, lives frugally, and is eminently business like. She claims to be, and probably is, the wealthiest woman on the stage. Her salaries are estimated as totaling up to considerable more than a clear million. Most of the money is held in the name of her mother, Mrs. Crabtree, who has been her daughter's business manager ever since she appeared on the stage. Lotta has sustained only one severe monetary loss. A man she was engaged to was at the bottom of it. She let him have $20,000 to speculate with. He lost the whole of it, and Lotta's heart and heart at the same time.

THE MOONLIGHT.

Some Singular Notions in regard to its Effect Upon Materials.

A writer in La Semaine des Constructeurs describes some singular notions in regard to the effects of moonlight upon various materials, particularly those employed in building, which prevail in the French provinces. Several writers in matters of construction, including Viollet-le-Duc, have adverted to the opinion common among masons, that moonlight produces a sort of honeycombing of the surface of certain kinds of stone, "owing," as one of the architects of the last century says, "to the dampness and coldness of the moon's rays." Viollet-le-Duc prefers to lay the damage which incontestably occurs on the south side of buildings constructed of porous stone to the rays of the sun, rather than those of the moon, and explains it by pointing out that the sun's rays often in winter cause violent changes in the temperature of dark stone placed in its light, sometimes raising the surface in a few hours from far below the freezing point to a degree of warmth quite perceptible to the hand; so that the south side of walls or columns undergo strains from sudden expansion and contraction which are not felt on the shaded side.

The French country people, however, do not share this opinion. Among the women it is regarded as a well-known fact that moonlight is not only more injurious than sunlight to the complexion, but that silk and woolen materials are faded more rapidly by the moon's rays than by the brightest sunshine, while the men think it only natural that an agent so powerful in its effects upon these substances should act unfavorably upon stone. Many of them, indeed, go much further and attribute to the moonlight an influence upon iron hardly less baneful than its effect on stone, and many poor farmers, who have no sheds under which to shelter their wagons and iron tools, build rough screens facing the south, behind which all their iron work can be protected from the moonlight. It is still supposed by thousands of French farmers that the rays of the full moon in spring burn the leaves of their growing vegetables; but this notion has been satisfactorily explained by the observation that in clear nights in spring the radiation of heat from the leaves of plants near the ground is often so rapid as to chill them below the freezing point, so that they become curled and brown even when the temperature of the air over them is considerably above freezing; and it is probable that some of the injurious effects attributed to moonlight upon other objects may be accounted for in the same way. Every one knows that dew will rust iron and steel more rapidly than almost any other natural agent; and as a screen of any kind interposed between a wagon or plow and the sky would, by intercepting the radiation from it, prevent the deposition of dew upon the metal, it can be easily seen that such a screen might, during the clear nights in which dew is formed, serve as a valuable protection to the farmer's tools without reference to the shade which it would afford from the moon's rays.—American Architect.

There is a man in Berlin township, Ohio, that has never been sick a day, and does not know what a cold is, yet he would never allow himself to be without a bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, "for no man knoweth what the morrow may bring forth."

Postmaster General Vilas has accepted an invitation to deliver the oration at the Academy of Music, New York, on the evening of memorial day. General Sheridan will also be present and probably President Cleveland and Governor Hill.

Especially to Women. "Sweet is revenge, especially to women," said the gifted, but naughty, Lord Byron. Surely he was in bad humor when he wrote such words. But there are complaints that only women suffer, that are carrying numbers of them down to early graves. There is hope for those who suffer, no matter how sorely or severely, in Dr. R. V. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription." Safe in its action it is a blessing especially to women and to men, too, for when women suffer, the household is askew.

SOMETHING FOR LEAN PEOPLE.

How To Get Fat.

Leanness of the body is a thing to be avoided on the ground that any departure from conditions which are natural must certainly predispose the body to disease. One of the first positive evidences of the development of the conditions which lead to consumption, is the knowledge that the body is throwing off in an undigested form, the fat that is taken into the stomach. This is followed by a loss in quantity and quality of the blood and corresponding loss in flesh. In these cases, there may not be necessarily consumption (though there may not be necessarily consumption of the lungs at the beginning) as in any case that ever existed.

Lean persons are the only ones who furnish material for the quick development of many ailments. Susceptibility to changes in the weather, feeble digestion, limited strength and energy, nervousness and disturbed sleep, soon lead to some serious disease. Another popular fallacy with lean persons is, that they must necessarily always remain lean because their parents have perhaps shown a tendency to this kind.

These lean persons doubtless inherit a tendency to imperfect action of the digestive functions. For the cure of this difficulty, many medical authorities have agreed that a pure stimulant is the best thing. A stimulant which can be taken with all of the best things which enter into an ordinary diet may well be considered a desirable one. This is secured in a pure malt whiskey, as it can be used with milk, eggs and with food at meal time. It is however not only desirable but absolutely necessary to get the best results, that a whiskey known to be free from fuel oil and all other adulterations should be used. The chief difference in stimulants of all kinds is the percentage of alcohol and, by diluting whiskey, which contains the digestive functions, can be obtained to suit any taste. The special properties of a pure malt whiskey are not destroyed by being diluted and sweetened, and in this way many persons who cannot use alcohol in any other form, can use Duffy's pure malt whiskey, the discoverers of which are the sole proprietors of an absolutely pure malt whiskey free from fuel oil and all adulterations. The company is furnishing constantly an abundance of testimony to the use of their whiskey taken three times a day at meals, a marked, constant and permanent increase in weight has been obtained by parties suffering from leanness, supposed to be unsuceptible to any other agency.

"On account of an error in sending the dimensions from Fort Wayne, the boiler room of the new electric light building was made too small, necessitating the taking down a part of one end of the building and making it larger. It should have been twenty-eight feet in the clear, in place of which it was made twenty-eight feet in the extreme depth," says the Huntington Herald.

Last Saturday Mr. and Mrs. J. S.
Rinehart were tendered a very pleasant marriage of J. S. Rinehart. Mr. Rinehart being located in one of the leading wholesale houses in Fort Wayne, his friends conceived it would be a fine idea couple, and accordingly set themselves were invited to assemble at the home of a trowl, and a watch with a hair guard, all the property of the pastor, Rev. T. D.

Thorp. The pants and some of the trinkets were found the next spring. The which the good people did justice.

PRICE THREE CENTS

GREAT!

Work of the Associated Press.

How Gladstone's Speech Was Handled for the American Newspapers Yesterday.

The Railroad Arbitration Bill Introduced in the Senate this Afternoon.

GREAT WORK.

Beauties of the Associated Press.

By Telegram to THE SENTINEL.

New York, April 9.—The superior cable service of the Associated Press yesterday deserves special mention. It was the most rapid and thorough work ever done for the American newspapers. For the first time two distinct reports were made. One for the afternoon papers and another containing almost a verbatim report of Gladstone's great speech, an abstract of Parnell's, with the comments of London papers on measures proposed.

[The afternoon report was printed in full in THE SENTINEL, the only afternoon paper in Fort Wayne that takes the Associated Press dispatches.]

The liberal papers, the Aberdeen Free Press, the Glasgow Herald, the Belfast Whig, the London Standard, all oppose the bill. The Dublin Freeman and Journal approve the scheme. The Dublin Irish Times and Dublin Express both disapprove it.

In Cork there is much excitement over Gladstone's proposals, but the general opinion of the people is favorable. The Pall Mall Gazette repudiates the scheme.

WASHINGTON

News From the Senate To-day.

By Telegram to THE SENTINEL.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—Senator Geo. Hearst, of California, was sworn in.

The bill to appoint a board of arbitration to settle differences between railroad companies and employees was introduced in the senate.

NOTES.

After a week's debate on Mr. Logan's bill to increase the army strength to 30,000 men, the senate rejected it 19 to 31. Mr. Payne was the only democrat who voted aye, while Messrs. Bowen, Cline, Conger, Hale, Ingalls, Jones, Nevada, Plumb, Sherman, Teller, Van Wyck and Wilson of Iowa, republicans, voted nay.

Gladstone's Bill.

By Cable to THE SENTINEL.

LONDON, April 9.—The newspapers throughout Great Britain and Ireland comment at great length on Gladstone's scheme for Ireland's government. The Liverpool Post says that whether Gladstone is successful or not, in carrying his bill through parliament, he has forever killed oppression and coercion in Ireland. The Scottish papers condemn the bill, say it will not pass and close by asking home rule for Scotland.

The Killed and Wounded.

By Telegram to THE SENTINEL.

CHICAGO, April 9.—A special from Laredo, Texas, says that two of the men wounded in yesterday's conflict died to-day. Returns now show that five persons were killed and ten wounded. There were five funerals to-day and business was practically suspended. The bulkhead rifle, state troops, are expected to arrive by special train to-night.

The Ohio To-day.

By Telegram to THE SENTINEL.

CINCINNATI, April 9.—During the eight hours ending at 10 o'clock this morning, the river has risen only two inches. There is every reason to hope it will begin to recede in a few hours and that it will not reach fifty feet. It was fifty-five feet, nine inches at 10 a. m. The weather is fair and mild.

Arrested—Comment on Gladstone

By Telegram to THE SENTINEL.

New York, April 9.—William H. Miller, member of the board of aldermen for 1894, was arrested in Florida yesterday for Broadway bribery. Gladstone's home rule scheme is favorably commented on by all the papers in this city this morning.

A NEW WHITE HOUSE.

A Private Residence to be Built for the President.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Senator Morrill's bill, which has been reported favorably by the senate, and is likely to pass both houses, is designed to furnish the president an appropriate dwelling place. The present White House has long since been inadequate to the demands of a president's residence. Out of the thirty-one rooms in the building, there is but one room on the first floor, the family dining room, and six chambers on the second floor are all that is left for the use of the president's family. The rest are devoted to the requirements of official receptions, and to the executive offices.

This is a very different state of affairs to the days of that good housewife Mrs. John Adams, who used to have lines swinging from one pile of lumber to another in the East room, and hang the clothes there to dry on wash days.

THE WHITE HOUSE IN 1800.

The president's house has been the scene of more changes, and business of importance to the welfare of a greater number of people has been transacted within its walls during the past eighty-six years of its existence than in any building in the world. It was the first public building erected in Washington. In March, 1802, the commissioners having charge of the new capital city advertised in the New York and Philadelphia papers "for a plan for a president's house to be erected in the city of Washington," offering a prize for the competition of the liberal sum of $500 for the accepted design. The successful one among the fifteen applicants was James Hoban, a young Irishman. He pleased the commissioners so well by his talent that they gave him a large salary to superintend the construction of the house. Hoban's plan, it was afterwards found, was not such an original conception as they at first supposed, for he closely copied the plan of Duke of Leinster's palace at Dublin, so that the present White House is almost a duplicate of that palace.

The above sketch of the "President's palace," as it was then called, has been handed down to us from those days. A fitting accompaniment to it would be this extract from a description of the city by John Cotton Smith, at that time member of congress from Connecticut. He wrote: "One wing of the Capitol only had been erected, which, with the president's house, a mile distant from it, both constructed with white sandstone, were shining objects in dismal contrast with the scene around them. Instead of recognizing the avenues and streets portrayed on the plan of the city not even visible. The Pennsylvania avenue, leading as laid down on paper, from the Capitol to the presidential mansion, was nearly the whole distance a deep morass covered with alder bushes, which were cut through to the president's box e." Here is a contrast with the Pennsylvania avenue of to-day.

THE PRESENT WHITE HOUSE.

In 1822 the corner stone of the White House was laid, and though the neighboring hills of Maryland and Virginia were full of excellent marble they were unaware of it, and a sandstone from a Virginia quarry was used in the walls of the building. This sandstone was afterwards found to be such a poor building material that it became necessary to give it each year a coat of thick white paint to keep it from crumbling away. The house is 170x25 feet in dimensions. The original White House cost about $250,000, and when John Adams and his family first occupied it, but six of its rooms were furnished. In 1814, on the invasion of the city by the British troops, President Madison fled from the city to a place of safety in Maryland, but his wife, Dolly Madison, remained to fulfill an engagement for a dinner party which she had made, not believing that the British would reach the city before the next day. While the guests were assembled at the banquet a servant rushed in with the startling intelligence that the enemy was on Capitol Hill. Then there was a supper. The guests fled in all directions and half an hour later the British soldiers were in the house. Finding a glorious dinner spread in the east room they regaled themselves first, then pillaged the house and set fire to it. The wines which the soldiers found in abundance at the deserted feast so fired their brains that they made a bungling job of the incendiary portion of their raid, but little damage was done to the building. It was not until 1817 that the house was restored.

When General Jackson was president in 1829 the grand portion was added, with its Ionic columns, which add such a grandeur to the building. Since "Old Hickory's" time no other important changes have been made in the building, except refurbishing and its annual coat of paint. These expenses, together with the original cost of the building, foot up to nearly $300,000.

THE SITE FOR THE NEW PRESIDENT'S HOUSE.

The site for the new building proposed by Mr. Morrill's bill is located directly south or in the rear of the present White House. An appropriation of $300,000 is asked to begin the erection of a building precisely similar to the present one and to be connected with it by a broad corridor, the new building to be used as the president's private residence and the old one for the executive offices.

While the bill is before congress there will be considerable chaffing of the members addressing it, on the ground that they are only the ones who possess the "presidential" title and are voting to feather their future nest.

FERRY BARTON.

PERSONAL CHAT

About Men and Events of Interest in Fort Wayne.

Rev. William M. French died suddenly at his residence in Indianapolis, about half past 7 o'clock last night.

Morris McDonald has organized a telephone company at New Albany, and petitioned the council for right of way.

The people of Brownson, Michigan, have practically passed a prohibitory law by fixing the license to sell intoxicating liquors at $6,000.

Samuel W. Austin, an old citizen of Crawfordsville, and cashier of the First National bank, was stricken with paralysis Tuesday evening.

J. F. Snyder, the new postmaster, has taken possession of the LaGrange post-office, and Mrs. E. M. Speed retires after holding the office for a period of seventeen years.

A woman in Butler, this state, washed all winter to pay for a divorce, and just finished paying for it, when she turned around and married the man from whom she was divorced.

The Indianapolis common council has revoked the franchise of the Central Union Telephone company, and the plant and instruments are being removed. New telephone instruments will be exhibited there to-morrow.

Will A. Kearney, the young attorney who was sent to the penitentiary from Logansport several months ago for horse stealing, and recently paroled by the governor, has returned to his home in Logansport. He will go to far western town and settle.

The Indiana Farmer will publish the following summary of crop reports for Indiana, this week: Of wheat, 1 per cent. of average in area, 94, condition 91. Last year same date, are 83, and 68. Of clover, 85, timothy, meadow, 83. Last year same; clover, 78 and timothy, 91.

James Aldrich, the would-be-murderer of Jerome Snyder, of Xenia, who was released on a bond of $1,000 last week, disappeared and forfeited his bail. This was discovered, when an attempt was made to re-arrest him for the purpose of increasing his bond. Snyder is yet alive, but in a critical condition. A large reward is offered for Aldrich's apprehension.

The town council of Rockville has granted permission to John J. Safely and his associates under the name of the Rockville Telephone company, to erect and maintain telegraph and telephone poles and wires in the streets and alleys of Rockville. The company will connect all out towns in the county with Rockville and give the citizens a direct wire to Indianapolis.

John C. Dickson, of Indianapolis, has entered suit in the superior court of Evansville, against James W. Morris, manager of the Mlle. Rhea company for $3,000 alleged to have been advanced to the Runaway Rye company, they being partners owning a half interest in the right to play that drama, the other half having been owned by the late theatrical firm of Brooks & Dickson.

Mr. John Loundergin and his wife started from South Bend to emigrate to Denver. In Chicago the wife desired to visit her father, Patrick Reilly, on the west side, and left her husband on the street for that purpose, since which time she has not been seen. When she left him she had in her possession $80 and several jewelry ornaments, consisting of a gold watch and neck chain, ear rings and several finger rings.

Mr. I. B. Gwin, a democrat, entered upon his duties as superintendent fifth division railway mail service on the 1st day of April, vice Superintendent Burt, removed. Gwin's first official act was the issuing of an address to the railway postal clerks under him, in which he says: "It will be the desire of this office to have the confidence and hearty co-operation of every employee, to the end that the efficiency and high standard of perfection attained in this service under the splendid management of my able predecessors shall in no way deteriorate."

THE TELEPHONE.

The Central Union Company to Certainly Withdraw From Fort Wayne.

Mr. R. B. Hoover, local manager of the telephone company, was in his office this morning when THE SENTINEL man called. "I am only here temporarily," said Mr. Hoover, "and I can only say that the order of the Central Union company will be followed, and all telephone instruments removed as soon as their contract expires. Six instruments were removed March 1, and 150 or so will be taken out June 1."

This will leave Fort Wayne without telephone service unless a new company comes in, and already Mr. B. O. Lumbard is figuring on organizing a local company to start and maintain a telephone exchange in Fort Wayne on a scale as extensive as the present service.

Malinda Ray has applied for a divorce from John Ray.

DEATH!

Dealt to Four Strikers at East St. Louis.

The Crowd Attempt to Rush on the Railroad Yards and are Shot Down.

Shots Exchanged at Argenta—An Attempt to Shut Off the Coal Supply.

A NEW DEAL.

An Effort to be Made to Shut off the Supply of Coal.

By Telegram to THE SENTINEL.

St. Louis, April 9.—The executive committee of the Knights of Labor have sent word to the assembly in which belong the miners at Mount Olive, Staunton and Warden, to make, upon notification, a demand upon the company, to cease to load coal for the Missouri Pacific or any of its branches. Should this demand not be conceded with, cessation of work will be next on the program. The purpose is to shut off the supply of coal from the Missouri Pacific.

Master Mechanic Bartlett, yesterday, sent to twenty-three firemen who left engines during the first part of the strike and been out ever since, notices of discharge. The firemen in this strike have persistently claimed they were not on a strike, but left the engines because they thought it safer to do so than to stay on them.

SHOOTING AT ARGENTA.

LITTLE ROCK, April 9.—Between midnight and 1 o'clock this morning Deputy Sheriff Williams, who has had charge of the force of deputies guarding the St. Louis and Iron Mountain round house and machine shops at Argenta, opposite this city, was approached by F. H. Darby, a leading member of the Knights of Labor, and notified him to take his force away or they would be put out. Williams seized Darby and locked him up in one of the rooms. Just then the outline of twenty or thirty men were seen a short distance away, and Williams ordered them out. Irregular shooting between the deputies and assailants then began. Probably a hundred shots were fired, and Williams was dangerously wounded. The mob soon after fled. Sheriff Warthen afterward arrested four men. Everything is quiet this morning.

SIX STRIKERS SHOT DEAD.

St. Louis, April 9.—A crowd of strikers formed at the relay depot in East St. Louis at 1:45 o'clock, and advanced in the direction of the railroad yards to stop work. They were met by a guard of deputies, who ordered them to disperse. The mob refused and made a rush for the yards, when the deputies leveled their Winchester and fired, killing six strikers.

LATER.

St. Louis, Mo., April 9.—The four deputy marshals stationed in the Louisville and Nashville yards fired into the crowd of 300 strikers. Five men and one woman were shot. The woman is supposed to be mortally wounded. The killed are: T. E. Thompson, Pat Bristol, employee of the water works, not a striker; Oscar Washington, painter; John Bohman, water works laborer, not a striker; Major Richmond, shot in the head and shoulder and probably will die; Mrs. John Pfeiffer, shot in the back, probably mortally, and an unknown man shot at the bridge approach. The crowd made no attack upon the yards, as first reported, but were standing on Calhoun bridge, near the Louisville and Nashville yards, jeering at the guards, when, without the slightest apparent provocation, the deputies leveled their rifles and fired two volleys. The crowd immediately separated, running in all directions, and the deputies ran over the Calhoun bridge toward the Missouri river bridge, still holding their rifles and firing to cover their retreat.

The strikers then returned to recover their dead. After the crowd returned to the scene and the excitement had abated, several leading strikers drew revolvers and swore they would drive all the deputes out of the city, even at a loss of their own lives.

A STRIKE OVER.

PITTSBURGH, April 9.—The strike at McClure's coal works, at Everson, Pa., has ended satisfactorily to the miners. The firm granted all demands and work was resumed to-day. About 1,000 men were affected.

STRIKE AT THE BRUSWICK WORKS.

CHICAGO, April 9.—The employees of the Brunswick, Balke & Colender billiard company, between 400 and 450 men, struck this morning for an increase of wages, changing from piece work to day work and the discharge of all non-union men.

FAST TRAINS

To Be a Feature of the Nickel Plate Railroad.

The Nickel Plate railroad company is grading its track and making all preparations to put on a line of fast passenger trains. The Nickel Plate is going into the Central Traffic association and this extract explains its importance:

The Cleveland Leader is much disturbed lest the Nickel Plate will become a member of the Central Traffic association and make judicial interference. The Leader says: "There is reason for believing that the Erie company will succeed in badgering the Vanderbilts and making the Nickel Plate a member of the Central Traffic association. The Nickel Plate, with its single accommodation train daily, is a very harmless competitor for New York business against three fully equipped roads. It does succeed, by judicious efforts, in picking up some business, but if fettered by the high rates which the Central Traffic association is seeking to impose upon Cleveland, it would undoubtedly lose even this little through business, because the road is not allowed to make close connections at Buffalo with any trunk line. The association has often been made that the Nickel Plate cannot be made a member of an association like the Central Passenger committee or the Traffic association, because it is in the hands of a receiver. It is not negligible, however, that other roads, controlled by receivers, are enrolled as members of these bodies, either by the blindness of the courts to the fact, or by their express or implied permission."

The Proceedings To-day Include the Reports of Presiding Elders of the District.

Death of E. H. Shirk, the Wealthy Peru Merchant and Banker, at His Home.

THE M. E. CONFERENCE.

Second Day of the North Indiana Conclave.

By Telegram to THE SENTINEL.

WANSW, April 9.—The large auditorium of the M. E. church was not sufficient to hold the throngs who desired to attend the missionary anniversary last evening. In the absence of C. C. McCabe, D. D., on account of illness, the meeting was addressed by Rev. F. A. Hadden, of the Rock River conference, and Dr. R. M. Barnes, of Richmond. The addresses were fine and the meeting enthusiastic.

The conference convened this morning at 8:30. Rev. T. Stabler conducted the devotional exercises. After the reading of the minutes, the presiding elders made reports of their districts.

R. D. Robinson reported a flourishing year in the Muncie district. The bishop, on behalf of the preachers of his district, presented their retiring presiding elder with a very handsome upholstered chair and a quilt from the ladies of Montpelier.

W. J. Vigos was next called, and reported the Warsaw district as having had a most successful year. As Brother Vigos retires from the presiding eldership this year, the preachers of his district, through the bishop, presented him with an elegant gold watch.

C. W. Lynch reported the Fort Wayne district, F. T. Simpson the Goshen, and J. E. Ervin the Kokomo district.

All these reports showed a good and successful year's work. The conference business is proceeding rapidly. Most of the effective elders have been called, and reported their collections and their characters were passed.

The committees are busily engaged this afternoon, preparing their reports. At 3:30 p. m. the anniversary of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society was held. This evening will occur the anniversary of the Church Extension society.

OBITUARY.

Elbert H. Shirk, One of Peru's Wealthy Citizens.

By Telegram to THE SENTINEL.

PERU, Ind., April 9.—Elbert H. Shirk, president of the First National bank, in this city, an old settler, and head of one of the largest general stores in northern Indiana, also head of the banking interests in Tippecanoe, Monticello and Driphat, and one of the wealthiest men in northern Indiana, died this evening, at 6 o'clock, of neuralgia of the heart, at his residence at West Fifth street. His illness was of brief duration. Mr. Shirk had large interests in lands and real estate in Chicago, Arkansas, and many points in this state. He leaves a widow, two sons and one daughter, all married—one of whom, Milton Shirk, is in Paris at present, with his wife, in search of health. The funeral will take place here Saturday at three p. m.

Evidence of Prosperity.

Several very important changes have recently been made in the leading clothing establishment of our city. First, the Calhoun street building has been beautifully decorated and refurbished, and will henceforth be devoted entirely to Men's and Boys' Furnishing Goods, Hosiery and Caps, and we are sure in stating that in this building will be found the largest and most complete stock in northern Indiana. The first floor on Main street will be used exclusively for Men's and Youth's Clothing, and is packed with an entire new stock, all made especially for Messrs. Sam, Pete & Max. The second floor on Main street has been tastefully fitted up for Boys' and Children's Clothing, making a easy and pleasant place for ladies, where they can leisurely fit out their children, avoiding the many annoyances usually encountered. This department is worthy of an early inspection. The third floor on Main street is filled with appliances for each department named.

The entire establishment has been refitted and decorated, and makes an appearance creditable to its liberal management, in their determination, that Star Clothing House shall keep pace with the metropolitan growth of our city. Messrs. Sam, Pete and Max cordially invite the public to inspect the largest, best made and most reasonably priced stock of clothing, furnishing goods, hats, &c., in the city. Edwitt

Miss Cora McLoughlin, who was the guest of her friend, Miss George Fleming, returned to Cincinnati to-day.

FRIDAY, APRIL 9, 1886.

SECRETARY WHITNEY.

The Croesus of Cleveland's Cabinet and His Home.

(Special Correspondence.)
WASHINGTON, April 5.—President-making is continuously going on in Washington. There are at this moment half a dozen laboratories in different parts of the capital in which such work is being done. Edmunds has one behind his copper bay window within a stone's throw of Blaine's big mansion. John Sherman has another in his brown stone front looking out upon the flowers of Franklin park, and away up on the hills above Washington General Logan sits with his accomplished wife and looks down upon the big White House which he hopes soon to occupy. I think if you could penetrate the sanctum sanctorum of the president himself, you would at certain hours of the night find him and Dan Lambert with the map of the United States before them, and volumes of political statistics at their elbows, laying out the campaign of 1888. You would note the Blue Book containing the salaries of the 100,000 and more of officeholders, and you would see them marking such places as would benefit themselves and the Democratic party.

But Cleveland in his letter of acceptance has stated that under no conditions will he accept a second term. His cabinet ministers hope that the administration may be perpetuated, and I doubt not in several of their souls is already sown the seed of presidential ambition. Bayard, long a candidate, is too filled with grief over his family losses to make a brave fight with nothing but little Delaware behind him. Vilas has few of the elements of presidential possibility. Tilden is too much of a Mag-wump, Garfield and Lamar come from the south, and the presidential bee has not yet gotten through the outstanding brown hair of Manning's big head.

Above the White House, in the highest granite building of the world, behind windows which look out upon the White House grounds, sits the only cabinet minister who has a fair chance of being the president's successor. He is a young man of 40, tall, straight and fine looking. The eyes which he wears are not those of a snob. Though his dress is that of a gentleman, in his well lighted office as secretary of the navy, he is as unassuming and demure as though his clothes were homespun and his boots were cowhide. It is William C. Whitney, Samuel J. Tilden's protégé, Henry B. Payne's son-in-law, the Croesus of Cleveland's cabinet, and the most princely entertainer in Washington.

Secretary Whitney has had his presidential laboratory going ever since the day of the inauguration, and his political wires have been plucked with gold. He rubbed the Aladdin lamp of his fortune, and in a night, almost, he converted the old Frelinghuysen mansion into royal magnificence. He said his "open season" and the duties of the world appeared upon his tables free to every decent man who would come and ask. Night after night, week after week, and month after month his hours have overflowed, with the influential people from all parts of the United States, and now that Lent has come his wife is to continue in entertainments to the wives of politicians at his country home.

Secretary Whitney's arrangements for such an ante presidential campaign are wonderfully complete. He has bought a country seat of about 100 acres within three miles of Washington. There is a fine, large old lounge, 16-18-16 chairs and tables seem to be made of golden wire, and the former are upholstered in brocade of many colors. Fine water color paintings hang upon the walls, and these mirrors which used to reflect the spoils of President Arthur and Tillie Frelinghuysen, will smile or frown upon you as you do upon them as you go by.

Passing through two such parlors, past a cozy little alcove, you enter the grand reception room which Secretary Whitney tells me was made for a living room and not for a ball room. It is here that Mrs. Whitney received her callers, and here the great parties of the past season were held. On that bay window-like rostrum at the right, represented in the following illustration, Mrs. James

Brown Potter recited the poem which set the tongues of scandal going, and that high backed chair with the wide seat of broad velvet and a carved frame of gold and white is the one reserved for President Cleveland. Said Mrs. Whitney in regard to it: "The president liked that chair when he visited us first in New York. He always sits in it when he comes here and we call it the president's chair."

But look at the room itself. What an immense hall it is! And how gorgeous are its appointments! A good sized city house of two stories, twenty-five feet front and sixty feet deep could be built within it, and the ceilings of both stories might be ten feet high and give a foot to spare for a foundation. Two trains of cars almost could be run on parallel tracks through its center, and their edges would not graze the wall. The ceiling of this room is twenty feet high, and it looks like a great inverted rectangular basin. It is paved in a rich gold tiled paper, against which the brilliant light from the many candelabra are thrown back upon the gay surroundings below. In the center of the ceiling there is a big skylight of many panes of oval glass, and from the edge of the basin, extending downward all around the room, there is a frieze representing garlands of flowers upon a paper maché background of rich yellow. Below this frieze the walls are hung in the finest of brocade satin. The pattern is taken from the days of Louis XVI, and it was woven in France to the order of Mr. Whitney. The satin is as fine, perhaps, as that of any of the dresses of the belles who have attended Mrs. Whitney's receptions. It does not hang upon the walls in folds, but is fastened to it like so much paper, and there is enough of it to carpet a good-sized house.

This grand ball room is furnished like that of a king. It has a great fire-place in the end, in which the logs are blazing, and so big that an ox could be roasted whole within it. In its recesses are richly upholstered seats and over it a mantle reaches almost to the roof. I will not stop to speak of the rare furniture gathered from all parts of the world, of the old Indian chair made into a cabinet, of the old masters upon the walls, or the grand tapestry which forms the portiers.

The dining room is almost equally grand. The same satin, of a different color, papers its walls, and ebony woodwork shows out in contrast. Old silver adorns the sideboard, and on the table before you champagne has flowed like water and terrapin has been eaten by the barrel during the past social season. At Whitney's New Year's reception, when terrapin cost $28 a dozen, gallons upon gallons of wine were served up to all who called, and it is reported in Washington that Mrs. Whitney's millionaire brother gave her a fortune to spend in entertaining. The kitchen of the Whitney house is as big as that of the presidential mansion. It has a range large enough for a Long Branch hotel, and it is useless to say that a foreign cook presides over it. The cuisine of the Whitneys is unsurpassed in Washington and the mouths of the gastronomes have begun to water the moment it is mentioned.

Mrs. Whitney has distinguished herself as a hostess, and she is more than a Montmorency in the carrying on of the presidential campaign. She has many of the qualities of Mrs. Logan, allied to much of the political ability of her father. She is bright and ready, good looking and sensible. She is not snobbish, and though she dresses upon occasion as well as any woman in Washington, she does not show that she is wearing her Sunday clothes, and her many beautiful diamonds do not seem out of place. Mrs. Whitney would make a brilliant lady of the White House. She would be much like Dolly Madison or Harriet Lane. Her administration would be a grand one socially, and it would be one which would add strength, politically, to the man who occupied the presidential chair. She is a well educated woman, and as the daughter of Senator Payne and the sister of her bachelor brother she will if she survives them be very wealthy some day. Her father is worth $4,000,000, and her brother perhaps between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000. Oliver Payne thinks a great deal of his sister. He gave her, it is said, her New York home, which cost $700,000 not long ago. This home is as fully furnished as either of the two who she is at Washington. Mr. Whitney himself is wealthy, and during a presidential campaign there would be no lack of a good sized barrel for legitimate expenses.

Pope Leo's oratorical action is said to be a curious study. His speeches are meditated, weighed and learned beforehand, and his gestulation extremely violent. Sometimes one would think he was delivering a terrible harangue, when he was in reality delivering a studied homily.

AT AN END.

Closing Hours of the Presbyterian Mission.

The Presbyterian missionary society closed its session last evening. The committee on time and place recommended that the society have a different time and place at which to hold their next meeting, and after discussion decided to hold their meetings at a different time and place from the Presbytery, and decided to hold their next meeting at Kendallville next April. The committee on nominations recommended the re-election of the same officers to serve the ensuing year, and was carried without discussion. The officers of the foreign missionary society are as follows:

President—Mrs. D. B. Wells, city.
Vice-President—Mrs. E. W. Walker, Goshen.
Secretary—Mrs. J. O. Keller, city.
Treasurer—Miss S. S. Keil, city.
The officers of the home missionary society are:
President—Mrs. D. B. Wells, city.
Vice-President—Mrs. E. W. Walker, Goshen.
Secretary—Mrs. J. O. Keller, city.
Treasurer—Mrs. M. E. Goodman, Kendallville.
Mrs. D. B. Wells was elected a delegate to the meeting of the boards of the northwest to be held the latter part of this month at Chicago. The address of Miss Clark to the young people was a success, and the church parlors were crowded to their utmost. After the address a bountiful repast was served, to which the good people did justice.

Honor to a Dead Hero.
At the reunion of the Thirtieth Indiana regiment at Warsaw, President Dodge read the following dispatch, which was received with cheers:

BANSTON HARBOR, Mich., April 7, '86.
To Colonel J. B. Dodge:

Cannot be with you in person, but must ever be present in spirit and sympathy on this day at the reunion of the Indiana Thirtieth. ELIZA M. BASS.

Mrs. Bass is the widow of Sion B. Bass, the first colonel of the regiment, who was mortally wounded at the battle of Shilo on the second day.

I was very sadly afflicted with rheumatism, suffering untold pain. Athlophores seemed to go directly where the pain was, and not only went there, but succeeded in drawing it away. I used only three bottles. G. W. Dove, newdealer, Vincennes, Ind.
